Eastside

Narrative:
The Eastside of Los Angeles is a heavily dense Latinx city with a rich history. Home to communities like Boyle Heights, Lincoln Heights, Monterey Park and Montebello, the Eastside is known for street vendors, small business owners, customer service, and a lively food industry. It houses a large amount of renters who are mainly Spanish and English speaking. They are teachers, social workers, blue collar workers, Huntington Park is about 80% renters, Vernon FactoriesSpanish is the predominate language but many folks are bilingual.

Key Unifying Trends:
In between major freeways, undocumented residents, low-working class families, gentrification/gentrification, 1st St and Cesar Chavez major commercial zones with preference for Latino businesses, green spaces

District Preferences:
Kept together, lincoln heights in sd2